

ABOUT US: LOUISVILLE CHAPTER KMGMA

The Louisville Chapter Kentucky Medical Group Management Association, founded by Beverly A. Moseley, was formed in August 1991 when it had its town meeting held in the Community Health Building located at 101 West Chestnut St. Ms. Moseley approached the Jefferson County Medical Society, now Greater Louisville Medical Society, to be a part of the strategic initiatives in creating the organization. At that time, one of the items in the JCMS strategic plan was to create an office manager association which would allow the society to identify medical office managers as they were the key communicator within the medical practice. Through these collaborative efforts of Ms. Moseley and Medical Society staff, key office manager groups were identified throughout the Louisville area for about one year prior to the first town meeting. They met with each group to let them know that the chapter would be forming. The objective was to create an organization which would be a local chapter of the National Medical Group Management Association (founded in 1926) and the Kentucky Medical Group Management Association. Participation in this organization provides many benefits including continuing education, discussion of current issues, practice enhancement and involvement with peers for networking and job improvement.
